However, don't be too quick to stop reading here. These are high value reward pleasures and I promise you, they can make a big difference when training your dog. You know, those moments when your dog decides to have a stubborn streak. Yes, even occasionally I have this blank look or teenage behavior of Millie's 'I Can't Feel!' Personally, I found that when Millie starts getting bored or distracted during agility classes, then those pleasures always save the day. I mix in a few pieces of liver pie with her normal store bought treats and she is suddenly more attentive and focused for longer!. What are you doing here? Related links: As someone who is always pushed by time, I can guarantee that the recipe is super easy to make and can be made gluten-free too. My top tip would be to get the stinky kitchen over all at once and batch cook various portions as you can freeze. You can pop lots of it in the freezer and it will last several weeks at a much lower cost than the store bought treats. Okay, so enough of how good it is, let's continue to do them. Here's my guaranteed liver pie recipe to satisfy those four legges! Liver cake recipe preparation time: 15 minutes; Cooks In: 90 minutes Difficulty: Easy ingredients: 450g (1lb) raw liver (I used lamb) 450g (1lb) self-lifting flour (or gluten-free flour for dogs with allergies) 3 eggs 2 grains d garlic (or 1 teaspoon lazy garlic) Milk/Water (n.b before hitting the feedback button with the fact that garlic is dangerous for dogs, there is very confusing contradictory information and garlic in small doses is considered safe. If in any doubt, then simply exclude it from the recipe). Method: #1 mix eggs and milk/water In a measuring bowl, crack the eggs and add milk or water to double the volume. Using a fork, mix well to mix. #2 Mix liver and garlic Using a blender, liquidate the liver and garlic to a smooth consistency. #3 Mix the above mixture into the egg and mix milk/water into the mixed liver and garlic. #4 stir in the flour in a large bowl, combine the remaining ingredient flour. You will find that it will become a sticky consistency and mass. #5 transfer to the baking trays that personally separate me into two batches and line my baking trays (it can be und folate). You could be creative here and make a bone-shaped cake - perfect for dog birthdays. #6 baked octopus baked at 180 degrees, for 45-60mins. Check the cake for around 35 minutes – the top should darken and should bounce when lightly pressed. #7 cut into treatment size pieces Remove from oven and cut into small size bites (yes prepares how it treats). I find it cut a little easier while still hot. Although being warned your pony will be watching carefully at this point. #8 keep in the fridge or freeze Keep the batches fresh in the fridge and pop the others in the freezer. While some people suggest letting it thaw, I find it this quickly and if in bites small enough, there is no need to do so. These treatments will last in the fridge for 2-3 days and in the freezer from about 3 months. My goal in life is to be so good of a person that my dog already thinks I am. #dogsoftwitter to tweet #9 be your dog's hero no explanation necessary – they have been sniffing around you throughout the process! Just pop your details below! Success! Now check your email to confirm your subscription. 1. Add the liver, eggs, garlic and a splash of milk to a jug. 2. And mix it. It should look a bit like a milkshake once made. 3. Transfer the mixture to a large bowl and add 200g (7 oz) of flour. 4. Mix ingredients until it is a thick sticky goo. You can add a little more flour if it is not thick enough. But I should be fine. 5. Grease a cake tin with a little butter. 6. Empty the mixture into cake tin, making sure it is level. 7. Put cake tin in the middle of a preheated oven at 160°C (320°F / Gas mark 3) and cook for about 45 minutes. 8. Well, now it has to be cooked. Delicious! 9. It's easier to cut while it's still hot. 10. Cut into squares and refrigerate. Freeze what you won't use in a few days. 11. If her dog is like mine, she will have seen you all along.
